NJPA Announces New Strategic Partnership with the American Association of School Administrators (AASA)

Staples, MN (May 24, 2007) – NJPA is pleased to announce its strategic partnership with the American Association of School Administrators (AASA). Virtually all of NJPA’s members in the K-12 education space recognize the value that this education association brings to the industry, and this strategic partnership will strengthen the relationship that NJPA has with its members.

“The partnership between NJPA and the AASA represents the level of leadership, cooperation and vision that will establish a pathway to meet the ever changing needs and budgetary challenges by providing national contract purchasing solutions for K-12 education across this country”, said Mike Hajek, Director of Contracts at NJPA.

NJPA’s partnership with AASA was awarded under a national RFP process. AASA’s section committee awarded NJPA based on the overall ability to:

- Serve as the premier purchasing partner for its membership on a national scope
- Gain access into the procurement of nationally acclaimed vendors
- Matching vision to serve the future needs to public education
